BSCS Biology: A Human Approach is an introductory high school biology curriculum that helps students look at and understand biology in a brand new way. This program is based on key ideas in biology today, organized around six unifying themes, and presented in a human context. BSCS Biology: A Human Approach curriculum aggressively incorporates an inquiry-based approach to learning biology. Hands-on activities clearly illustrate the connections between biology, daily life, and the human body--something teenagers relate to and understand. Most importantly, this program centers around students learning science by doing science. This is exactly the way scientists approach their work, so throughout this program, students learn to work like scientists--using inquiry skills to ask questions, gather and analyze data, and solve problems.
