Bela Barenyi: Pioneer of Passive Safety at Mercedes-Benz Harry Niemann

In this biography of Bela Barenyi, Dr. Harry Niemann draws on the inventor's personal papers to reveal a life of vicissitudes along with achievements. The grandson of a wealthy industrialist, Barenyi not only suffered a debilitating infection as a child that left him with a physical handicap but also witnessed his family's financial ruin following World War I, which forced him to drop out of school. Despite early evidence of technical aptitude and visionary ideas -- including the design of "The People's Car of the Future," which anticipated elements of the Volkswagen Beetle -- the inventor's career languished until his passionate interest in safety was given free rein at Daimler-Benz, leading to such developments as the platform chassis, concealed windshield wipers, the safety steering column, the pagoda roof, and many others. In highlighting Barenyi's contributions, Dr. Niemann also explains their role in shaping the company's tradition of accident research and its philosophy of safety innovation. This revised edition includes a discussion of new advances in safety at DaimlerChrysler as well as an expanded Appendix with a selection of reprinted articles by and about Bela Barenyi.
