Adventures with Pinhole and Home-Made Cameras John Evans

Photography is driven by technological innovation, but Adventures with Pinhole and Homemade Cameras strikes off in a radically different direction.

Featuring the images of renowned artists and photographers, it describes a rich variety of imaginative approaches, using camera construction techniques which range in sophistication from precision engineering with state-of-the-art lenses to piecing a pinhole in a beer can!

Visual aspects of the book are complemented by an extensive practical section, including guidelines on image formation and step-by-step procedures for exposure control, as well as diverse methods of building and adapting camera bodies.
